Whether a horse is purchased for personal or business reasons, ownership represents a significant investment of time, money and resources. While no one likes to think about the potential for tragedy, horses seem to be prone to illness, accidents and injury.

Should some peril befall your horse, nothing may ease the emotional burden, but wise planning can help reduce the economic impacts.

Many reputable insurance companies offer policies to help protect owners from financial loss should a horse become ill, incapacitated or die. Because individual policies vary widely from company to company and circumstance to circumstance, it is beyond the scope of this brochure to explain how to find the right coverage to meet your needs. Each policy has its own terms, conditions and requirements, which may necessitate action from you, your veterinarian and your insurance company.
