

Unusual scenarios illustrate the range of cases in which a good insurance policy and good relationships are critical.

by Marnye Langer

Gators in the Barn

With a hurricane bearing down on Florida, our LEGIS client, a trainer, took the prudent step of evacuating her horses to a place out of the path of the hurricane. After the storm blew through, the trainer checked on her property. It turned out that alligators had moved into her barn. She prudently beat a retreat.

