

New development hunter/jumper show encourages affordable advancement in the sport.

Already known for its inventive management style, Nilforushan Equisport Events (NEE) is living up to its reputation with the addition of a new, unrated show weekend to its popular spring series. Taking place April 9-11, the Nilforushan Equisport Events Developmental Series will combine the feeling of competing at an A-rated horse show with the cost of competing at a local competition.

This unrated show will be held at the beautiful Galway Downs facility, the same that hosts the organization's four-week Temecula Valley National Horse Show, to allow exhibitors to take advantage of a premier space and experience for an affordable flat fee. NEE's four-week National series begins April 15-19, followed by three consecutive weeks May 13-31.

"The goal of this new Developmental Series is to allow equestrians to develop young horses, gain experience in the ring or simply to have fun without spending a huge amount to do so. We want this sport to be accessible to everyone. Nobody should have to save money for months or years to be able to afford a worthwhile horse show experience," commented Ali Nilforushan, co-founder of Nilforushan Equisport Events.
